Technical News Elvira Pita-Mejia — Chapter VP – Technical

March Meeting Highlights!

Thank you to Tony Furst from Taco for presenting at our March 2026 meeting. He helped all in attendance to navigate thru how to read and understand pump curves. The meeting was well attended with over 25 guests enjoying an evening of food, drinks, networking and a whole lot of technical information.

What's to Come!

Join us Thursday, April 9, 2026 for the ASPE South Florida Chapter General & Technical Meeting.

Speaker: Dalton Usury, McWane Group Topic: "Value Engineering Considerations for Plumbing Designers"

Overview: Dalton Usury will cover the primary considerations that affect a project owner when considering value engineering efforts as they relate to replacing cast iron soil pipe with thermoplastics. The presentation covers underground trenching/burial, firestopping, sound attenuation, sustainability, hangers/support, expansion/contraction, plenum ratings and more. It also includes a cost comparison to demonstrate as-installed price deltas. This presentation is not only great for seasoned designers, but it provides fundamental background to new designers.

Details: Date: 04/09/2026 — Time: 6:00pm-8:00pm — Location: American Social, Boca Raton, FL

Education Chairperson / Treasurer - Kyle Stottlemeyer

The American Society of Plumbing Engineers (ASPE) continues to support the growth and advancement of plumbing design professionals through a robust set of certifications built to strengthen technical expertise, validate professional competency, and expand industry credibility. Whether you're an experienced engineer or just starting your career, ASPE offers a certification path to help you advance.

Certified in Plumbing Design (CPD) This is ASPE's top certification — the big one. Earning your CPD shows you've mastered advanced plumbing system design and are committed to the highest level of professionalism in our field.

Certified Plumbing Design Technician (CPDT) If you're earlier in your career or want to strengthen your foundational knowledge, the CPDT is a great starting point. It helps you build confidence, deepen your technical understanding, and prepare for future certifications, such as the CPD.

Green Plumbing Design (GPD) Offered with IAPMO, this certificate is perfect for anyone interested in sustainable design. As green building and water conservation become increasingly important each year, this is a smart way to stay ahead of industry trends.

---Looking Ahead: ASPE Convention & Expo 2026

Mark your calendars! ASPE's signature national event, the 2026 ASPE Convention & Expo, is scheduled for October 8–14, 2026, in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

We appreciate your continued participation and support as we strengthen our chapter and advance the plumbing engineering profession throughout South Florida.

Warm regards, Kyle Stottlemeyer Education Chairperson, Treasurer - ASPE South Florida

Corresponding Secretary - Vanessa Londoño

As Corresponding Secretary of ASPE, I am continually reminded of the importance of communication, connection, and community within our industry. Our role goes beyond sharing updates. It's about keeping our members informed, engaged, and inspired to be active participants in the growth of our chapter.

This past month has been a great reflection of what makes our organization strong. At our recent meeting held at Famous Dave's' here is a quick summary of your winners:

Event Detail Information

Attendees - 24

RSVP - 23

Walk-ins - 1

50/50 Winner- Kye – $50.00

RSVP Winner - Maria Saenz

Through gatherings like this, we continue to bring together engineers, contractors, and wholesalers, who share a common goal: to learn, connect, and elevate our profession. The energy and participation we see at each event are a true testament to the value of staying involved.

I would also like to encourage all members not to become complacent, but to continue investing in their education and professional development. Our industry is constantly evolving, and it is important that we grow with it. Whether through attending ASPE events, participating in other industry associations, or seeking new learning opportunities, staying proactive is key to both personal and professional success.

“Strong communication builds strong communities—and strong communities build a stronger industry.”

Sponsorship Opportunities & Upcoming Events

ASPE South Florida would like to thank our chapter sponsors for their continued support. Their contributions help us provide educational programs, networking opportunities, and events that bring together plumbing engineers and industry professionals throughout the year.

One of our most anticipated events is our Topgolf Networking & Tabletop Showcase on June 24th. This event will host nearly 100 engineers, designers, and industry professionals, giving sponsors a great opportunity to showcase their products and connect directly with the people who specify them.

Only five tabletop spots remain, and they are expected to fill quickly.

We are also excited to announce that sponsorship is now open for the ASPE Region 3 Presidents Meeting, taking place June 5–6. This regional event will bring together industry leaders and members from across the region, creating another great opportunity for companies to gain visibility and support the ASPE community.

If your company is interested in securing one of the remaining Topgolf tabletops or learning more about Region 3 sponsorship opportunities, please reach out to me directly for more information.

Administrative Secretary - Vanessa Londoño

As I begin a new chapter in my career with a new role, I am especially grateful for the opportunity to continue serving as Administrative Secretary. It is truly a privilege to be part of something much greater than myself. Having the opportunity to help build a strong and connected community within our industry. Being involved as administration secretary is not just about supporting operations; it's about creating opportunities for our members to grow, connect, and succeed.

Through our chapter events, we bring together engineers, contractors, and industry partners with a shared goal: expanding knowledge and strengthening relationships. Each meeting and event are designed to provide value, whether through education, networking, or simply the exchange of ideas that move our industry forward.

I encourage all members to stay involved and take advantage of everything our chapter offers. Growth happens when we show up, engage, and remain open to learning.

As we continue planning future events, I look forward to seeing our chapter grow even stronger. Together, we are creating a space where professionals can thrive, learn, and support one another.

“Being part of ASPE leadership is a privilege that allows us to turn ideas into impactful events and bring together engineers, contractors, and industry partners to grow as one.

Warm regards,
Vanessa Londoño

In the world of plumbing, an air gap is more than just empty space, it's a critical safety barrier. By providing a physical separation between a water discharge outlet and a flood-level rim, it ensures that non-potable waste can never be siphoned back into your clean water supply. If you look at the faucet in your office's breakroom sink, the "gap" is the vertical, unobstructed space between the tip of the faucet (the water outlet) and the top rim of the sink basin (the flood level). This physical space ensures that if the sink drains were to clog and the basin filled with dirty water, that contaminated water could never be "sucked" back into the building's clean water pipes, even if there was a sudden drop in water pressure.

VP-Legislative Interim Report—Emilio Sorondo

Florida's 2026 Legislature has approved HB 589, bringing several notable updates to the permitting process for onsite sewage treatment and disposal systems (OSTDS). The most significant change affects single-family residential projects: local building departments can no longer require a DEP-issued OSTDS construction permit before issuing building or plumbing permits, as long as the owner or builder provides proof of submitting the permit application to DEP.

While this streamlines the early stages of construction, DEP retains authority at the back end—no residence may be occupied until DEP approves the final OSTDS installation, and any future change in occupancy must also be reviewed and approved. Property owners who begin installing a system before the permit is issued now assume all legal and financial liability for any problems that occur.

The bill also adds an important transition safeguard: new DEP rules for OSTDS will not apply to permit applications filed within 90 days of the rule's adoption, reducing disruptions to ongoing projects.

For ASPE members, these updates mean a more predictable workflow during design and permitting, with fewer roadblocks at the municipal level while maintaining DEP oversight where it matters most.
